

"Negotiating and Drafting Dispute Resolution Provisions in Tribal Contracts," Tribal In-House Counsel Association

Speaking Engagement
March 19, 2025
State Bar of Arizona Webinar

Contact

Chloe Thompson
Villagomez

A tribe or tribal entity typically enters into hundreds of contracts per year. Negotiating and drafting appropriate dispute resolution provisions in these contracts is an important way that tribes can protect their sovereignty and other interests. CLE focuses on:

Related Services

Tribal Governments &
Enterprises

- Identifying and addressing waivers (or potential waivers) of sovereign immunity,
- Crafting appropriate dispute resolution processes, and
- Considering other contractual provisions for preventing and handling disputes.

The discussion will also cover things to keep in mind in drafting indemnification provisions, limitations of liability, governing law provisions, choice-of-forum provisions and arbitration provisions.