Foster Garvey has further expanded its Business & Corporate Finance practice group with the addition of Jason M. Powell as a Principal in the firm's Portland office. Powell is the firm's third strategic hire in the last four months with future growth on the horizon.

With extensive experience advising businesses, lenders, investors and startups across the United States, Powell is a seasoned corporate, securities and M&A attorney. Powell is focused on results, delivering exceptional client service that is aligned with Foster Garvey's commitment to best-in-class counsel. His practice focuses on helping clients in securities offerings and other financing transactions, mergers and acquisitions, and joint ventures. Further aligned with the firm's growth, Powell is often called upon to counsel startup and emerging companies on a broad range of issues throughout the business lifecycle.

"Jason brings tremendous complementary experience and exceptional insights to our team, adding to the depth of corporate and commercial guidance we can provide our clients," said Hillary Hughes, principal and leader of the Business & Corporate Finance practice group. "We are pleased to welcome him as we continue to align top legal talent with the growth of our firm."

Powell was most recently a partner at Dunn Carney LLP, where he served as co-leader of the Securities Law team and was a member of the Business & Corporate practice. While there, he advised clients on a variety of business combination transactions, equity financings, real estate syndications, real estate funds, mortgage pools, and performing and non-
