

Redevelopment Training Institute – Redevelopment Planning Law Course

Newark HUD Office, Newark, NJ

October 1, 2015

Event Sponsor: New Jersey Redevelopment Authority

Greenbaum partners Robert S. Goldsmith and Robert Beckelman will be presenters at the Redevelopment Training Institute's Redevelopment Planning Law Course, offered by the New Jersey Redevelopment Authority. The two-day program is scheduled for September 30 and October 1, 2015, and will be held at the Newark HUD Office in downtown Newark from 9:30am – 4:30pm.

This course on the redevelopment planning law process will provide a broader understanding of the crucial issues, steps and challenges associated with New Jersey's Local Redevelopment and Housing Law (LRHL). The workshop features a faculty with many of the top planners, attorneys, government officials and consultants from the New Jersey redevelopment arena who will share their real world redevelopment experiences.

The course includes an in-depth review of the legal issues and challenges, discussion about the redevelopment planning process, redevelopment plans and designations, community engagement, redeveloper selection and agreements, and analysis of recent legal and public policy issues on redevelopment such as eminent domain, environment liability and relocation. Topics will include:

- Legal criteria used to make a determination between an area in need of redevelopment or in need of rehabilitation
- Interaction of redevelopment and other required or beneficial governmental action
- What experts, advisors, and support should be brought into the process and when
- Technical requirements of the redevelopment planning process
- How to prepare for public hearings and deal with oppositions
