

New Edition of Condominium & Community Association Law Book Now Available

December 28, 2007

Gann Law Books announces the release of the 2008 edition of the book, New Jersey Condominium & Community Association Law, authored by Wendell A. Smith, Dennis A. Estis and Christine F. Li, partners in the law firm of Greenbaum, Rowe, Smith & Davis LLP. The book is a practical guide to assist condominium and other common interest communities, attorneys and other professionals, as well as lay persons, in thoroughly understanding the rights and obligations of common property ownership and enabling officers and board members of condominium and community associations to better understand their roles. This new edition contains revised Master Deed and By-law Provisions.

The book contains the latest New Jersey cases impacting condominium and community association law as well as:

- a detailed discussion of the legal, financial, and marketplace requirements imposed on developers and the consequences of these requirements for lenders and individual unit purchasers;
- a point by point treatment of the provisions of a master deed, by laws and other critical documents;
- solutions to problems frequently encountered in the creation and administration of common interest projects; and,
- statutes, regulations, sample documents and discussions of significant cases.

All applicable New Jersey statutes, regulations and requirements are current through October 12, 2007, making this a "must have" for any one needing the latest information available on condominium and community association law.

Wendell A. Smith, chair of the Planned Real Estate Practice Group, concentrates his practice in land use and planned real estate development, including large, mixed use projects as well as active adult, golf course, and resort communities.

Dennis A. Estis, chair of the Construction Practice Group, focuses his practice in the area of condominium and community association law, including but not limited to complex litigation, corporate and association representation, and alternate dispute resolution (ADR), particularly as they relate to condominiums and cooperative corporations.

Christine F. Li, member of the Planned Real Estate Practice Group, represents developers, sponsors of the conversion of rental properties, community associations, successor sponsors of existing communities, and lending institutions in her practice.
