Nathan has represented clients in complex litigation matters for over fifteen years. More specifically, his practice includes construction defect claims, property damage, payment disputes, as well as personal injury and product liability claims. He has defended national home builders in construction defect litigation, represented businesses of varying sizes in commercial disputes, and defended a major cigarette manufacturer in smoking and health litigation across Florida. He has significant experience at all stages of complex litigation.

Nathan is an active member of the American Bar Association's Section of Litigation and has served in multiple leadership roles over the years.

Nathan and his wife and three children are members of Bay Haven Presbyterian Church in Tampa, FL, where he serves as an Elder. He is an avid sports fan and enjoys spending time with his family. Nathan also enjoys reading and listening to podcasts on the topics of religion and science, theology, and apologetics.
