Chad concentrates his practice on all aspects of employee benefits and executive compensation law, including the design, drafting, and administration of qualified and nonqualified retirement plans, health and welfare plans, fringe benefit plans, and equity-based compensation arrangements. Chad advises clients with respect to, among other things, compliance with the Internal Revenue Code, ERISA, COBRA, HIPAA, PPACA, FMLA, MHPAEA, and any other laws or regulations, from the federal to the state and local level, that impact employee benefit plans or executive compensation arrangements. Chad also advises buyers and sellers as to employee benefits and executive compensation issues in mergers and acquisitions. In addition, Chad advises clients on and prepares employment agreements and service contracts and offers guidance to employers with regard to Affirmative Action Programs and other issues associated with federal government contracts.
