

ninth circuit gives green light to employees sexy text messages

MSK Client Alert

August 2008

A cautionary tale for employers, the federal Ninth Circuit of Appeals' recent decision in Quon v. Arch Wireless (June 18, 2008) underscores the need to diligently ensure that employees have no expectation of privacy when using any company-issued electronic communication equipment or system.

practice areas

employment litigation & counseling labor & employment

labor litigation & counseling