

california labor and employment law 2007: a summary of notable developments

MSK Client Alert

Special Edition 2007

Although there were relatively few legislative developments in 2007, the year was not without note to the employer community. Most significantly, California employers continued to be inundated with wage and hour lawsuits, typically filed as class actions and alleging violations of the state's overtime, meal period, rest period, and timekeeping laws.

practice areas

employment litigation & counseling labor & employment

labor litigation & counseling