

two out of three ain't bad: california supreme court hands down three new employment decisions

MSK Client Alert

October 2007

The California Supreme Court has been busy in recent weeks interpreting some of the state's many employment laws. Two of these decisions were decisive victories for employers, while the third makes it still easier for California employees to pursue class action claims.

practice areas

employment litigation & counseling

labor & employment

labor litigation & counseling