legal expertise

Mark Geylikman is a dedicated advocate who specializes in litigating high-stakes cases involving breach of contract, construction, fraud, intellectual property, products liability, real estate, and a wide range of business disputes. Mark is deeply committed to his clients' goals and executing strategic, tailored solutions to help achieve them. Mark has successfully represented and counseled clients through multiple bet-the-company cases.

While litigation is the core of Mark's practice, he also regularly counsels clients through commercial transactions. Having litigated numerous contractual disputes, Mark brings a distinct and practical perspective to drafting and negotiating agreements—understanding the real-world implications and structuring deals to protect his clients' interests during turbulent times.

As the son of immigrants who came to the United States from the former Soviet Union in search of a better life, Mark is a first-generation American and the first attorney in his family. At 16, Mark set his sights on becoming an attorney. Nearly a decade later, while in law school and working as an extern at the United States District Court for the Central District of California, Mark fully grasped the privilege and responsibility of the legal profession. As an extern, he spent every free moment observing trials, sitting in judges' chambers, and immersing himself in the courtroom environment. Mark went on to enroll in Loyola Law School's acclaimed Litigation and Advocacy Concentration, graduating with honors and dean's list recognition.

Outside of his practice, Mark spends his time traveling the world, exploring new cultures, and cooking for the people he loves.
