

third-party funding in international commercial and investment arbitration, chartered institute of arbitrators (ciarb) annual conference

April 3, 2018
4:00 - 5:00 PM (EST)

Mark Bravin will be speaking on, "Third-Party Funding in International Commercial and Investment Arbitration," at the Chartered Institute of Arbitrators (CIARB) 2018 Annual Conference. This session will be held on Tuesday, April 3, 2018, from 4:00 PM to 5:00 PM.

As international commercial and investment arbitration keep growing, so does the demand by private parties and sovereign states to find creative and financially conservative means to fund their cases. Third-party funding – as an industry that may currently exceed billions of dollars – offers innovative ways to finance arbitrations for parties that might otherwise be unable to fund their own cases, or to ensure appropriate representation due to insufficient funding. While third-party funding influences the contours of international arbitration, as a legal concept such funding involves contentious issues. This panel will discuss the process that a third-party funder follows to decide on the financing of a case, the adequacy of disclosure that a case is being funded, the issue of conflicts of interest concerning third-party funding, and past and potential means available to sovereign states to fund their cases.

Moderator

Timothy D. Scrantom | Scrantom Dulles

Panelists

- Yasmin Mohammad | Vannin Capital
- Edward G. "Teddy" Baldwin | Baker McKenzie

attorneys

Mark Bravin

practice areas

international disputes litigation

third-party funding in international commercial and investment arbitration, chartered institute of arbitrators (ciarb) annual conference

- Mark N. Bravin | MSK
- Clara Brillembourg | Foley Hoag

More Information

Register