

new cases in copyright law—internet and beyond

Practising Law Institute

July 8, 2019
1:00 PM (PDT)

Eleanor M. Lackman will be speaking on the panel, "New Cases in Copyright Law—Internet and Beyond," at the Practising Law Institute's "Fundamentals of Copyright Law in the Data Era 2019" event taking place on July 8, 2019 at the PLI California office.

"New Cases in Copyright Law—Internet and Beyond"

Speaker: Eleanor M. Lackman, MSK

1:00 PM PDT

- A review of major copyright case law over the past year
 - Impact of case law on copyright law practice
-

Overview

Why You Should Attend

With every year, new and notable developments emerge in copyright law that steal headlines and change the practice. Technological advancements create more platforms for creators and offer broader access to consumers for copyrightable content. Simultaneously, the laws governing copyright face novel challenges that are not always sparked by new technologies. Attend this foundation-setting program to understand the basic tenets of copyright law and learn some of the most current legal developments and experience why this area of intellectual property law continues to fascinate.

What You Will Learn

- Basic Principles of Copyright Law, including rights, ownership, registration
- Copyright Enforcement, including protecting copyrights, litigation, damages
- Notable copyright case law and their practical takeaways practice areas

commercial litigation entertainment & ip litigation entertainment transactions intellectual property litigation specialties trademarks & brands video game

new cases in copyright law—internet and beyond

- Intermediary Liability and the DMCA
- Emerging issues in music copyright, including the Music Modernization Act

Who Should Attend

Attorneys engaged or interested in copyright law practice would find this program informative.

CLE credit offered for the program*

More Information