Orly Ravid will be speaking on "New Realities in Distribution & Audience Engagement" on September 23, 2020, as part of DOC NYC PRO.

DOC NYC PRO presents a day of education on current trends in documentary distribution and audience engagement, including sessions on theatrical and digital distribution for the pandemic context and beyond; new realities for audience engagement—both long-term developments and more immediate responses to social distancing requirements.

Topics covered will include:

- How to release a film (theatrically) during a pandemic
- How to release a film (digitally) during a pandemic
- The future of audience engagement and social impact
- Spotlight on Canada: a case study of Once Were Brothers

If you have questions about accommodations and accessibility for this event, please email accessibility@docnyc.net.

Tickets to this event are $40 and offer access to participate in the livestreamed panel sessions and to have unlimited access to session recordings after the livestream. All registrants will receive written resource materials, including a transcript of the live sessions and a copy of the slide presentation.
