"Guitars, Cadillacs, and Termination Disputes"

September 21, 2021

In 2013, when artists started trying to recapture their copyright interests in works copyrighted under the 1976 Copyright Act, an intricate dance ensued, bringing studios, publishers, and artists to the table to interpret the framework created by the 1909 and 1976 Acts, and to negotiate the complex factual issues underlying termination rights in a variety of works. This panel will discuss the issues raised by copyright termination disputes and the views of the various stakeholders in these matters.
