September 14, 2018

Emily Evitt has been named to The Recorder's 2018 list of "Women Leaders in Tech Law - Next Generation." Honorees will be featured on The Recorder website this fall and toasted at a reception in San Francisco on November 14th.

From the September 14th announcement on The Recorder's website:

"The Recorder is pleased to announce the 2018 Women Leaders in Tech Law. Each year we recognize recent work by California-based lawyers who practice in the technology industry. For the first time, we are recognizing a group of Next Generation leaders, women in their first 10 years of practice who have shown promise as leaders in law and technology.

Editors picked 60 winners—30 Women Leaders in Tech Law and 30 Next Generation Leaders. These lawyers, through their work in courtrooms, boardrooms and classrooms, are helping the law and the legal profession address novel issues raised by technological advances."
