Adam Levin and Stephen Rossi were highlighted in the article, "Simpsons' Composer Alf Clausen Drops Wrongful Firing Suit Against Fox," published by Variety on January 25, 2022 for their representation of Fox in an age and disability discrimination lawsuit filed by a former 'Simpsons' composer.

From the article...

"Fox's attorneys, Adam Levin and Stephen Rossi, sought to strike Clausen's complaint under California's anti-SLAPP statute, which protects free speech from frivolous lawsuits. They argued that the choice of composers on "The Simpsons" is protected under the first amendment, and it cannot be regulated by state anti-discrimination law."
