Billboard named Christine Lepera the Lawyer of the Year on its 2024 "Top Music Lawyers" list published on April 1, 2024.

From the article...

"She handles many different types of cases, from representing Daryl Hall in last year's headline-grabbing battle with longtime partner John Oates that's still pending to Dr. Luke in his just-settled defamation case against Kesha. But her primary specialty is defending superstar artists against allegations that they've stolen their songs from someone else. Over the past year, Lepera has handled such copyright cases for Dua Lipa, Jay-Z, Post Malone and others; previously, she has done similar work for Katy Perry, Ye (formerly known as Kanye West), Drake, Ludacris and many more. For Lepera, who herself plays piano, working those lawsuits is not just about the people involved, but about their music — and their right to create without facing needless lawsuits."
