Allan Cutrow is quoted in "Family Matters: Business succession plan crucial to owner and heirs," featured in The Business Press. When transitioning ownership of a family business to heirs, Mr. Cutrow urges companies to be prepared with legal documents that can prevent or minimize estate taxes. In devising an exit plan, he says that the first step is to obtain an assessment of the business' value, stating "Professionals have a lot of tools available addressing, and to some extent ameliorating, the tax issues."
