MSK Partner Robin Gilden was quoted in the article, "GOP Tax Bill: Big Gains for Studios, Not for Showbiz Rank and File," published by Variety on December 19, 2017.

The article discusses the House and the Senate are expecting to vote on a massive tax plan, giving President Donald Trump a signature legislation achievement in 2017. "This tax bill will eliminate the deduction of ordinary and necessary unreimbursed business expenses, which means you won't be able to deduct things like audition travel, or acting lessons, or even your union dues," the organization said in a letter to their members in the past few days.

From this article...

"This bill was designed to hurt East Coast and West Coast professionals," said Robin Gilden, an expert in tax law at Mitchell, Silberberg & Knupp.
