Eleanor M. Lackman and Marissa B. Lewis were mentioned in the article, "NBA Bounces Suit Claiming It Stole Fan's Prediction App," published by Law360 on April 15, 2020.

From the article...

"A New York federal judge on Tuesday tossed a $50 million lawsuit from a man alleging the NBA stole his idea for an app that would allow fans to win prizes if they correctly predict how their favorite stars will perform, but gave the man a chance to amend his claims now that he is represented by counsel.

The NBA is represented by Eleanor M. Lackman and Marissa B. Lewis of Mitchell Silberberg & Knupp LLP."
