Lucy Holmes Plovnick was quoted in the Bloomberg Government article, "Maryland Youth Privacy Requirements Signal Growing State Trend," published on November 12, 2024. The article discusses Maryland's new online safety law which restricts how businesses can collect and process data from minors online and applies to a broad range of digital services likely to be used by children and teens.

From the article...

"Other states will likely join Maryland's approach that puts an affirmative duty on businesses to act in the best interest of children, said Lucy Holmes Plovnick, partner at Mitchell Silberberg & Knupp LLP.

Youth privacy and online safety measures also found bipartisan support in Congress this year, though they've stalled in the House.

'This is not going away. This is going to be a trend that you need to be paying attention to,' Plovnick said."
