

collective bargaining and immigration

Manufacturing.net

September 2014

MSK Immigration Partner Frida Glucoft and Associate John Exner co-authored an article "Collective Bargaining," for Manufacturing.net, a targeted news source on topics and trends shaping the manufacturing sectors and influential manufacturing executives.

The article serves as a brief reference guide for employers to consider when filing work visa applications on behalf of foreign workers under a CBA employment. Knowing the immigration-related elements of a CBA and engaging qualified immigration and labor counsel in the collective bargaining process is critical to ensuring the company's ability to retain foreign national employees in compliance with the terms of their immigration status and the terms of the CBA.

attorneys

Frida P. Glucoft

practice areas

immigration

immigration