Overview

Anne is a distinguished attorney with a profound understanding of the legal challenges faced by businesses in the transportation industry. With a background deeply rooted in a family-owned business environment, she possesses an intrinsic appreciation for the intricacies of how the law affects day-to-day operations. Anne channels this understanding into her legal practice within our Commercial Transportation & Logistics Service Group, where she is a dedicated advocate for clients across various segments of the industry, including trucking companies, logistics providers, and others navigating the complexities of contract disputes, personal injury cases, regulatory compliance, evidence preservation, and risk management in catastrophic loss situations.

Anne's record of success is marked by her defense of clients in a range of critical cases, from allegations of negligence against motor carriers and drivers to defending against claims arising from motor vehicle accidents involving limousines, charter buses, and other commercial vehicles. Her legal acumen is further evidenced by her proactive involvement in shaping the legal landscape through thought leadership, as demonstrated in her contributions to key industry alerts, speaking engagements at prestigious forums like the USLAW Network Transportation and Logistics Exchange, and published works on nuanced legal topics.

Beyond her proven litigation skills, Anne is deeply engaged with the future of transportation, showing a keen interest in the legal implications surrounding autonomous vehicles, including self-driving cars, trucks, and the advent of electric vehicle technology. Her forward-thinking approach to these emerging areas signifies her commitment to staying at the forefront of legal and technological advancements that impact her clients.

Her dedication, combined with her comprehensive understanding of the transportation industry's legal framework, positions Anne as a vital asset to her clients, helping them navigate the ever-evolving legal challenges they face with confidence and clarity.
