Overview

Dan focuses his practice on defending commercial transportation companies, insurance carriers, product manufacturers, and businesses of all sizes in catastrophic personal injury litigation. Licensed to practice in all state and federal courts in Ohio, Kentucky, and Michigan, Dan is known for his strategic and tireless advocacy in high-stakes litigation.

For more than a decade, Dan has built a national reputation as “go-to” counsel for leading garbage and waste management carriers, as well as major heavy truck and aviation companies. He has successfully tried cases to verdict in jurisdictions across the country, including Ohio, Kentucky, Michigan, North Dakota, Indiana, and Florida. His litigation portfolio spans complex claims involving workplace injury, product liability, civil conspiracy, fraud, and workers’ compensation death benefits.

Dan’s transportation practice is bolstered by his role on the firm’s Rapid Response Team, where he is frequently called upon at a moment’s notice to investigate catastrophic losses involving serious injury or fatalities. Working closely with clients, he provides end-to-end support—from on-site investigation and evidence preservation to trial. His deep knowledge of the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations enables him to effectively defend clients in cases involving wrongful death, traumatic brain injury, burns, paralysis, and other catastrophic harm.

Beyond transportation, Dan is also a trusted defender of product manufacturers and aviation repair facilities in claims involving alleged design defects, manufacturing flaws, and failure to warn, often arising from incidents involving severe injury or loss of life.
