SENIOR COUNSEL

Overview

Drew was drawn to the legal field from a young age when he saw lawyers on television vigorously representing their clients' best interests against the odds. He became a lawyer due to his desire to help others in the same way.

As a member of the firm's Real Estate, Zoning & Public Finance Service Group, Drew offers practical, strategic counsel grounded in more than two decades of real estate law and government. He represents public and private companies and individuals facing a variety of issues including negotiating and preparing contracts, closing documents, and other related instruments in complex real estate transactions. Formerly the sole underwriting counsel for a large title company, he has a track record for solving complex title matters, helping clients close real estate transactions successfully, and providing guidance for tens of thousands of real estate matters.

Prior to joining the firm, provided legal counsel to a St. Charles County's Department of Corrections, Election Authority, Division of Building and Code Enforcement, and Division of Humane Services and served as municipal prosecutor for code enforcement.
