Overview

Natalie aims to make estate planning as stress-free as possible for her clients. When faced with the uncertainty of structuring inheritances for loved ones, administering trusts, or navigating a probate in the wake of a loved one's death, clients can rely on Natalie for guidance during each step of the intricate estate planning and administration process and an understanding of the real-life legal implications of each plan. She finds fulfillment in getting to know her clients, putting them at ease, and providing open communication and support during a difficult time.

As a member of Amundsen Davis's Trusts, Estates & Succession Planning Service Group, Natalie handles matters including estate planning, trust administration, probate, and tax preparation. Clients appreciate her diligent, communicative, and organized approach to legal work. As an avid reader, Natalie enjoys drafting custom estate plans to meet each client's personal goals and objectives, a process that often involves creative writing and problem-solving skills.
