PARTNER

Overview

Tiffany keeps her clients' interests top of mind. It isn't enough to simply resolve the issue at hand—she is a counselor, negotiator, and creative thinker who aims to ensure clients don't find themselves facing the same situation again and prevent future litigation. Whether in or outside of the courtroom, Tiffany has a knack for resolving legal issues, particularly those that arise where law and business decisions intersect.

As a seasoned litigator, Tiffany represents individual, business, nonprofits, and government clients facing complex issues in Wisconsin state and federal courts. She has helped businesses protect their intellectual property rights and defended them from infringement claims. Tiffany has represented individuals accused of stealing trade secrets or violating noncompete provisions.

She has also fiercely defended schools and municipalities unfairly accused of violating civil and constitutional rights, including defending against claims brought under 42 U.S.C. § 1983. She has successfully defended her clients at the Seventh Circuit and before the United States Supreme Court.

Tiffany also works with employers of all sizes to address issues such as hiring, firing, employee contracts, and enforcing employment agreements. She often serves as outside counsel for sticky HR issues and defends clients in court or administrative proceedings in issues of employment discrimination, wrongful termination, harassment, employment agreements, wage and hour complaints, and more.

Additionally, Tiffany works with various sized companies to help resolve contract disputes and unpaid invoices. She has successfully negotiated payment and resolution for her clients through all stages, from pre-suit negotiations to post-filing settlements and successful mediations.
