

Represented a Driver Alleged to Have Been Negligent During a Lane Change

Amundsen Davis represented an insured driver in an automobile accident case, where the defendant was alleged to have been negligent during a lane change. We conducted a thorough background check on the plaintiff and discovered that the incident and lawsuit had not been disclosed in the plaintiff's pending bankruptcy case. We earned summary judgment in favor of the insured, arguing that the plaintiff failed to disclose the lawsuit as a potential asset in her bankruptcy case and therefore had no standing to bring the case.
