

Represented a Fast Food Franchisee Against Claims of Misleading Consumers

Amundsen Davis represented a fast food franchisee against claims that its restaurants had misled consumers because the cost of its extra value meal was greater than the sum of each of the components. Despite the claim being brought on behalf of a putative class, we were able to settle the case on an individual basis – before even filing an answer.

PROFESSIONALS

Eric L. Samore
Special Counsel

Ronald Balfour
Partner

RELATED SERVICES

Business Litigation

Class Action

Franchising