

Successfully Defended a Nursing Home Operator and a Pharmacy Against a False Claims Act Complaint

Amundsen Davis defended a nursing home operator and a pharmacy against a False Claims Act (FCA) complaint involving allegations regarding the manner in which the clients dispensed medications to nursing home residents and billed for those medications. We obtained dismissal of the complaint, with prejudice, by successfully arguing that the relator plaintiff failed to plead fraudulent conduct with sufficient particularity and was pursuing theories where there was no private right of action.
