

Successful Defense of Attorneys Accused of Malicious Prosecution & Abuse of Process

Amundsen Davis successfully defended attorneys accused of malicious prosecution and abuse of process in a matter brought by an opponent party who claimed she suffered personal injuries when the police – seeking to serve temporary injunctive relief materials on the opponent party in the underlying litigation – became involved in a physical altercation with her after being sent to achieve service by the attorneys Amundsen Davis defended. The trial court granted a summary judgment motion dismissing the action against the client attorneys in its entirety, and the case settled before the ensuing appellate court proceedings were fully resolved.
