

Amundsen Davis Columbus Office Approaches Two-Year Mark in Central Ohio

Firm News
November 17, 2025

Amundsen Davis, a nationally respected law firm with a deep Midwestern footprint, approaches two years in Central Ohio, marking a period defined by growth, community involvement and a commitment to providing legal experience to support the needs of Central Ohio.

In January 2024, Crabbe Brown & James joined Amundsen Davis, establishing Amundsen Davis's Columbus office and bringing together a legacy of legal leadership while expanding Crabbe Brown & James' capabilities to more than 260 attorneys across Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, Ohio and Wisconsin. In September 2025, Amundsen Davis further solidified its commitment to Ohio with the opening of the Cleveland office, reflecting a strategic investment in serving clients and communities across Ohio.

To commemorate these milestones, Amundsen Davis hosted a celebratory reception in Columbus, welcoming more than 150 leaders from the Ohio business, nonprofit and civic sectors. The event highlighted the firm's commitment to building meaningful relationships, fostering collaboration and contributing to the vitality of the Central Ohio region.

"Our growth in Columbus reflects a steadfast commitment to the people and enterprises that make this region thrive," said Larry James, managing partner of Amundsen Davis's Columbus office. "We take great pride in providing legal counsel grounded in integrity, experience and a genuine understanding of the communities we serve. At Amundsen Davis, we measure success not only by outcomes in the courtroom and the boardroom, but also by the positive impact we create for the community and our clients through our work."

Luke Fedlam, partner at Amundsen Davis, added, "Goodwill is our greatest return. The Columbus reception was a powerful reminder that law firms play a vital role in strengthening communities. We are proud to partner with clients and the community as we work to advance opportunity, collaboration and civic engagement throughout Central Ohio."

Amundsen Davis's Columbus team represents a broad range of legal disciplines and sectors, offering clients the firm's hallmark blend of national and international leadership, along with its regional and Central Ohio insights.
