Ryan Jacobson was recently quoted in the Chicago Daily Law Bulletin article, "Suit against Justin Bieber tossed." The article details a two-year lawsuit against Justin Bieber by a woman claiming emotional distress due to an alleged online interaction.

Ryan, who represented Bieber in the case, states, "The case shows the need for 'a formalized vexatious litigant statute' at the court trial level... This was the legal equivalent of letting an unhinged fan storm the stage - not to enhance the melody - but to attack the lead singer, insult the audience, and then demand a Grammy for her chaos."
