

Do Your Employees Have Quiet Quitter-Itis?

Article

InTouch Magazine – NAMA

Spring 2023

Employers are now dealing with the residential effects of the COVID-19 pandemic, specifically "quiet quitting". Quiet quitting is described as employees getting by with minimum effort and not going above and beyond their job description.

In Heather's article in NAMA's InTouch Magazine, Spring, 2023 edition, she explains "quiet quitting" and what it is that is disengaging these employees.
