"The NTE report reveals many potentially important insights regarding U.S. trade policy focus under the new Biden Administration, and why U.S. companies, large or small, with footprints in China should be on alert."

In Ngosong Fonkem's article, "'Tough on China' Trade Policy Continues," he offers a list from the NTE report of the Biden Administration's grievances against China's trade barriers and along with his observations of the report and what it means for U.S. companies with footprints in China.
