Kim represents insurers in complex professional liability matters in myriad industries. She offers a breadth of experience, routinely advising insurers on issues of insurance coverage and underlying liability exposure in connection with claims against lawyers, health care institutions and providers, architects, engineers, insurance agents, and real estate agents and brokers. Kim serves as coverage and monitoring counsel, and litigates coverage issues nationwide. Kim also serves as defense counsel for professionals in high-exposure professional liability claims.

Representative Matters

- Helped to secure a favorable outcome in June 2016 in a jury trial relating to rescission of an accountants' policy. Cont'l Cas. Co. v. Marshall Granger & Co., 921 F. Supp. 2d 111 (S.D.N.Y. 2013), 6 F. Supp. 3d 380 (S.D.N.Y. 2014). The Second Circuit affirmed the judgment for the insurer. Cont'l Cas. Co. v. Marshall Granger & Co., No. 16-2384, 2017 WL 2416902 (2d Cir. June 5, 2017).
- Set important Fourth Circuit precedent regarding the operation of so-called "innocent insured" provisions in a case holding that a professional liability policy's innocent insured provision did not save coverage where the policy's prior knowledge condition to coverage had not been satisfied. Bryan Bros., Inc. v. Cont'l Cas. Co., 660 F.3d 827 (4th Cir. 2011) and 704 F. Supp. 2d 537 (E.D. Va. 2010). Cont'l Cas. Co. v. Battery Wealth, 474 F. App'x 898 (4th Cir. 2012).
- Obtained summary judgment for her client in a case addressing the critical issue of the scope of insured
