Natalia is an associate in the firm's Litigation and Global Disputes groups. She represents and advises private companies in a variety of complex litigation matters and international disputes in state and federal courts as well as before arbitral tribunals.

She has experience in disputes in a wide range of industries, including energy, real estate, manufacturing, and technology. Her practice also includes litigation related to the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act and the Federal Arbitration Act, as well as regulatory investigations.

Natalia is also active in pro bono matters, successfully representing clients in state and federal courts in criminal appeals and civil rights actions.

Prior to starting in a private practice, Natalia worked at leading international arbitration institutions advising and managing international cases.
