In Agri-Pulse's article, "Trump Administration Split on Lifting Phosphate Tariffs," Hon. Nazak Nikakhtar is quoted regarding the review of countervailing duties on Moroccan and Russian phosphate imports and the executive branch's role in that process, stating, "The executive branch has, and exercises, a lot of discretion in determining whether there is material injury to the domestic industry." She added, "The analysis is very complex, which gives the administration a lot of leeway."
