Corporate Political Activities 2011: Complying with Campaign Finance, Lobbying & Ethics Laws

September 8–9, 2011 | Washington , DC

Jan W. Baran, Co-Chair, Caleb P. Burns, Speaker

Conference Overview: Lobbying and campaigning in Washington and every level of government nationwide is changing. The campaigns for president have started, affecting lobbyists, corporations, trade and membership associations and unions. With states also regulating, compliance with federal, state and local laws is more complex than ever. Congressional ethics rules and the Lobbying Disclosure Act (LDA) place additional responsibilities on companies. To stay above reproach, be sure to attend this acclaimed program, where high-level officials from the Federal Election Commission, Department of Justice, and congressional ethics committees, as well as expert private practitioners, will explain how to comply with the laws at all government levels regulating political and lobbying activities.
