Wiley Rein Hosts 18th Annual "Take Your Child to Work Day"

April 23, 2010

As part of Wiley Rein's week-long staff appreciation celebration, the firm is hosting about 35 children, between ages 9-17, for its annual "Take Your Child to Work Day." The young guests will have time to enjoy games while also spending part of the day working alongside their parents and in various administrative departments to get a feel for what life is like at a major law firm.

Melodie Felder, the firm's Chief Human Resources Officer, said: "We are delighted to see so many bright, eager youngsters and share with them what goes into our day. Wiley Rein takes great pride in its family-friendly atmosphere."

Each year, Wiley Rein hosts its employees' children as part of an expansive staff appreciation week that features a wide-range of special events and raffles.
