

David Gross Speaks on 'IT and Internet Policy Priorities' Regarding the Incoming Administration at National Press Club

December 20, 2016

Press Contact

Patricia O'Connell

T: 202.719.4532

poconnell@wiley.law

Washington, DC—Ambassador David A. Gross, co-chair of Wiley Rein's Telecom, Media & Technology (TMT) Practice, recently participated in an informative panel discussion addressing "Innovation Priorities for the New Administration." The two-part program, organized by the Information Technology & Innovation Foundation (ITIF) and the Technology Policy Institute (TPI), was held on December 15 at the National Press Club in Washington, DC.

The first panel—entitled "IT and Internet Policy Priorities"—was moderated by ITIF President Robert Atkinson, and featured Amb. Gross, along with Maureen Ohlhausen, Commissioner at the Federal Trade Commission, and Shane Tews, a Visiting Fellow at the American Enterprise Institute.

The two-panel program focused on how the new Administration may reevaluate policies that affect innovation and technological development and how federal policies can promote broadband buildout, spur investment in intelligent infrastructure, encourage research and development, and advance a host of other actions that have the potential to improve productivity and the U.S. economy.

Related Professionals

Amb. David A. Gross
Senior Counsel
202.719.7414
dgross@wiley.law

Practice Areas

International & Internet
Internet of Things
Telecom, Media & Technology

David Gross Speaks on 'IT and Internet Policy Priorities' Regarding the Incoming Administration at National Press Club

To view the video segment featuring Amb. Gross, please click here (comments begin at 24th minute).