Health Care Privacy and Security Developments: Top Issues to Watch in 2015

Bloomberg BNA's Health Law Reporter
January 8, 2015

It is probably fair to say that the health care industry is constantly in turmoil. When you factor in multiple large-scale expansions of government health care programs, enormous advances in medicine and technology, rapid evolution of health insurance arrangements, new attention to wellness programs and individual involvement in health care along with vast arrays of new business combinations between and among health care providers and payers, it is hard to think of the last time the health care industry hasn't been embroiled in vast chaos. Even with this ongoing status quo, the developments to look at in 2015 for health care privacy and security stand out. Click here to read the full article.
