

Catching Up on Canadian Environmental Regulation

Wiley Podcast

September 9, 2022

In this follow-up to last year's episode, "The Great Green North: A Discussion on Canada's Environmental Regulations," Martha Marrapese and W. Scott Thurlow come together once again to discuss updates in Canada's environmental and chemical regulatory spaces. Listen as they break down the developments since their last conversation, including the Canadian ban on single-use plastics and new actions regarding perfluoroalkyl substances (PFAS), as well as Toxic Substances Control Act (TSCA) reform in the U.S. and Canadian Environmental Protection Act (CEPA) reform in Canada.
