Notice Regarding COVID-19

March 13, 2020

Message to Our Clients:

In light of the global coronavirus (COVID-19) public health emergency, Wiley has activated elements of its business continuity plan, and we are fully prepared to continue providing excellent service to our clients.

As developments occur on a daily and hourly basis, our firm is taking steps to minimize potential business disruption and to address the well-being of our clients, colleagues, and employees. The firm has already taken steps including mobilizing remote-work capabilities, and has established preventive health measures for employees and visitors in our Washington, DC offices.

Please do not hesitate to call your primary Wiley contact or me if we can be of assistance during this unprecedented and challenging time.
